SERVING THE MONTEREY PENINSULA INCLUDING FORT ORI

Vol. 28 No. 66, Wed., Apr. 2, 1975 | 665 Broadway Seaside, California 93955 Area Code 408: 394-6632 | 10 cents per copy; $7.50 per year by mail

Redevelopment agency goes through a routine agenda

The Seaside Redevelopment Agency zipped through a lengthy agenda at its regular March meeting last week in about 30 minutes.

It was in line with what Executive Director Harold Camacho calls the scaling down of agency activities as the inevitable result of having accomplished a large portion of its mission.

The most important item on the agency agenda, which was routinely approved, authorizes the execution of a local grant-in-aid agreement with the city of Seaside for utilization of community development block fund grants.

The city of Seaside designated in December of last year a total of $807,102 for the completion of existing redevelopment projects from the total of some $1.7 which the city expects to receive in community development federal funds.

These redevelopment programs include Del Monte Heights, Gateway Project, Hannon Project, and Laguna Grande Project.

Executive Director Harold Camacho noted that since the grant-in-aid feature is a new program, there is a possibility that state or federal regulations or administrative rulings may alter the intent of the program to establish specific amounts to be paid communities.

In that event, however, language was included in the resolution authorizing the execution of an agreement with the city that would not automatically invalidate the agreement, should its status as a loan not meet with approval.

The resolution now goes to the city council for its approval.

The agency also routinely approved another resolution to eliminate positions from the description of agency employes of those jobs which are vacant and no longer required, a side-effect of the scaling down of agency function.

Eighteen positions were deleted from agency job descriptions by the approval of the resolution. These include engineer, assistant executive director, architect, rehabilitation counselor and loan specialist, finance director, and others.

Under new federal guidelines, the functions of the redevelopment agency are now under the administrative wing of the city of Seaside, and the city council and staff have more direct control over it and responsibility agency operation.

"Because of the scaling down in renewal activities, it is felt that these positions are no longer required, nor are they expected to be filled in the future," Camacho said. "If there is a future need, new positions and scales will be designated at that time."

MENELIK TEMPLE No. 36, A.E.A.O.N.M.S., has received its first Shrine Club.

The Imperial Director of Members, Past Potentate Robert F. Hines, and Director of Shrine Club, Noble Emanual Hudson, were here last weekend in the home of Noble T.J. Polite, 1630 Marietta St., Seaside. Officers elected were T.J. Polite, president; Noble Harry Williams, Jr., vice-president; Noble Alvin J. Nelson, secretary; Noble Roosevelt William, treasurer; Noble Johnnie Thomas, sergeant-at-arms. Other members are Noble Wright Byrom, Noble Donald E. Cooper; Noble John D. Finny; Noble Aike Garden; Noble Charles S. Price. This club has begun discussing goals that will involve: Boys-for-a-Day or Big Brother Programs; Underprivileged Children's programs; Borderline Children's programs; programs for retarded or handicapped children; talent and scholarship for boys and a boys' summer camp program; a boys' oratory contest; and possible aid to hospitals in materials and equipment.

Ethnic Awareness Day scheduled

Judge William Booth, who rose to professional status in criminal courts and who is presently presiding in one of the courts in Brooklyn, New York, is scheduled to be the keynote speaker at Monterey's Peninsula College First Ethnic Awareness Day festival, Friday, April 4, in the college Amphitheatre.

Judge Booth will address spectators at about 1 p.m., relating his talk on the festival theme "Making the Community Aware" of the heritage and life-styles of America's ethnic minorities.

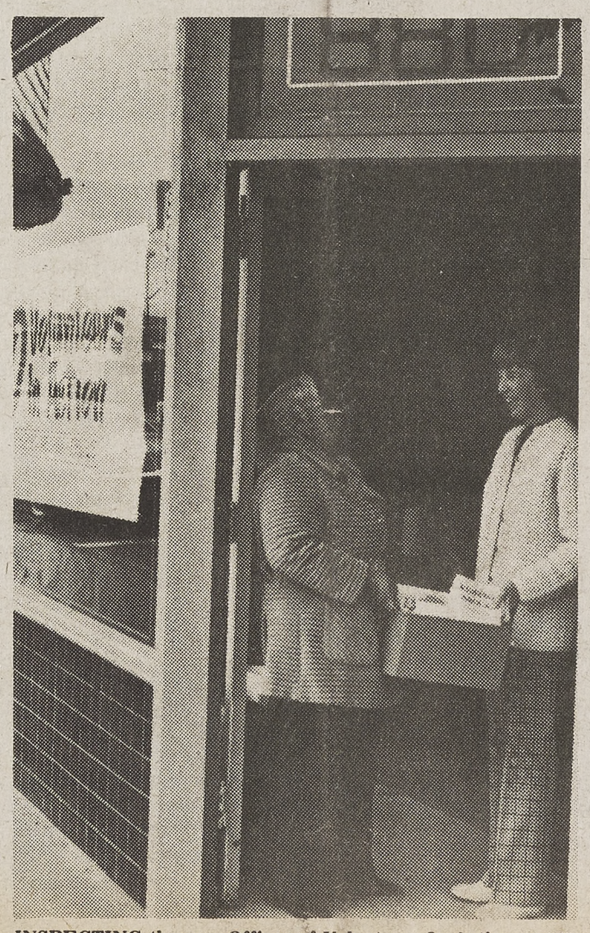
The local community and students in the Monterey-Salinas areas are invited to witness and enjoy the day's activities that will be filled with booth displays in ethnic craft, arts, culture, entertainment, and sparkled with the delicious specialities of food items by Chinese, Japanese, Chicano, Filipinos, Blacks, and other minorities.

Beginning at 11 a.m. April 4, the program will begin with a welcome address by MPC's president, George J. Faul, followed by musical entertainment and the serving of soul, Spanish, oriental, and other ethnic meals. Specialties in food include such dishes as chow mein, chicken tariyaki, enchiladas, pancit and lumpia (Filipino noodle and egg roll), gumbo, barbecued pig, collard greens, native American cornbread, and a wide variety of other traditional ethnic dishes.

The meal will be sold on the basis of 50 cents per food item or dish as a donation towards ethnic scholarships. Pre-sale tickets for food are available at the Office of the Ethnic Studies Division and the Student Center on campus. Special door prizes will be given away.

Ethnic Awareness Day at MPC in the future will continue to be observed as a day of tribute toward furthering understanding of America's minorities.

Volunteers in Action open office



INSPECTING the new Offices of Volunteers In Action at 880 Broadway in Seaside last week were Phyllis York (left) and Mary Rogers, both with the Organization's Outreach Office. (Photo by Mike Whitlock).

Volunteers In Action of the Monterey Peninsula moved into a new office at 880 Broadway last week, after literally being squeezed out of former quarters at St. Francis Xavier Church.

It wasn't that Volunteers In Action wasn't wanted at the Church, but there simply wasn't adequate space. Now, the organization has a centrally-located outreach office in Seaside, where much of volunteer activity on the Monterey Peninsula is focused.

Phyllis York, director of the office, said there's a need for volunteers to help deliver fresh vegetables to low-income and elderly persons in Seaside, as well as people to provide transportation and typing services to senior citizens.

Other needs include drivers for the Meals on Wheels program and for sponsors for the Project Buddy program, one of the largest ongoing enterprises of Volunteers in Action, in which adults sponsor youngsters in socially constructive experiences.

There are now about 422 active volunteers involved with Volunteers in Action on the Monterey Peninsula, and 57,000 more donated manhours of time were contributed in that cause last year than in the previous year.

Volunteers can come from practically any situation, Mrs. York said. They have included senior citizens, students looking for job experience, as well as people who hold down jobs of their own. A student volunteer program in Monterey absorbs a lot of youngsters who want to do volunteer work.

In Seaside, a student volunteer program at Seaside High School enables students to earn one credit of academic credit for every 12 hours of volunteer work, for certain kinds of classes.

When a person wants to volunteer his time and talents, an interview is arranged with Mrs. York and every effort is made to match people with things in which they are interested.

Volunteers' motives generally are a mixture of things, from religious to instructive, but there is usually one reward that is foremost, she believes.

"People feel that to help someone in need makes them feel needed themselves," Mrs. York observed. "Perhaps religious convictions are a part of it; a volunteer job is a chance to learn, even if it is non-paying."

Mrs. York started as a volunteer herself several years ago, and then served on the Board of Directors of Volunteers in Action.

Backyard burning ban takes effect locally

The Monterey Bay Air Pollution Control District reminds residents of Monterey and Santa Cruz counties that backyard burning is banned after March 31. The ban applies to all areas of the two counties with regular weekly garbage collection.

Recreational fires such as campfires, barbecues and burning in fire places are permitted. District regulations provide that starting again Dec. 1, 1975, through March 31, 1976, residents of one and two family dwellings may burn yard trimmings and brush on announced burn days. This is only in those areas where permitted by local fire regulations.

Industrial, commercial operations, apartment houses and multiple dwellings may not burn wastes at any time unless they have a district-approved multiple chamber incinerator.

Farmers holding valid agricultural burning permits may continue to dispose of crop wastes by burning on announced burn days.

Ring named grand marshal of Marina spring parade

Civic leader and businessman William F. (Bill) Ring has been named grand marshall for Marina's 7th Annual Spring Parade and Celebration to be held at 1 p.m. Sunday, April 27.

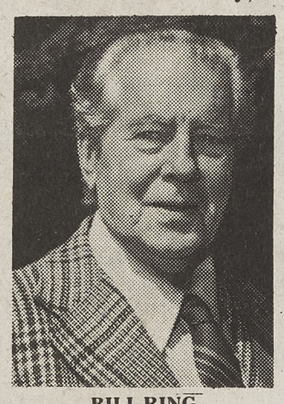
Bill Ring, a 25-year resident of Marina, has been active in numerous civic activities. He is past president of the Marina Kiwanis, two times past president of the Marina Chamber of Commerce, active in the Marina incorporation drives over the years, and past president of the Marina Civic Association.

He is also a member and past president of the Advisory Commission to Special Services Districts 28 and 29, which is responsible for the Marina Community Center and for all recreational facilities in the area.

A veteran of World War I and World War II, Ring is a member of Fort Ord Memorial Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 811, Marina, and a life member of American Legion Post 694, Marina.

Ring is married to the former Sireta Cosky, a resident of Marina since 1918. The Rings have two children.

As grand marshall, he will lead the parade, in an open convertible, down Reservation Road from California Avenue to Vista Del Camino, where the parade will terminate after passing the reviewing stand.



BILL RING

Following the parade there will be a carnival in the vacant lot adjacent to the UCB building on Vista Del Camino. The carnival will feature live entertainment, a bar-be-que, and food booths sponsored by local churches and civic organizations.

This year's parade is shaping up as the biggest and best yet with more than 150 entries, and more than 1,000 marchers expected.

Where does student fit into educational systems?

Has the student in the educational system become of secondary importance, so that he doesn't know how to get the best education for himself?

At least one student counselor who ought to know, thinks so. Tyre Howard, student advisor for technical and vocational training at Monterey Peninsula College, would like to see the secondary schools work more closely with higher education to meet the needs of students.

The notion that academic subjects, those leading to bachelor's and master's degrees, are the only acceptable ones to be pursued in college has become so prevalent that many good vocational courses go begging. Very often, Howard said, the students who would be happiest in vocational courses are the last to enroll in them.

The fault, too often, lies with the educational structure and those who function in it. Their values are often the same as those of students: that vocational courses are for the "dumb" student, while academic subjects are for those who are "smart."

"We need to look at the school system to serve the entire society," Howard said. "The educational system was never intended to serve the needs of the entire society; it was just for the middle class people. But now we have to teach to everyone."

Howard's observations come from many years outside, as well as inside, the educational establishment. After a career as a master sergeant in the Army, Howard came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1963 and held various jobs, in construction, with a food store, at Fort Ord, and as a gardener for the Marina public schools.

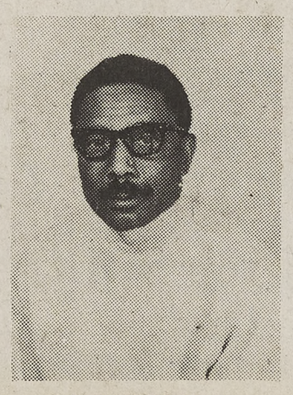
But in 1968, he resigned his gardening job and enrolled as a student at MPC. In 1970 he transferred to San Jose State University, where he graduated in 1972 with a B.A. in sociology. He was employed with a van line company until 1973, when he took on his present position with MPC.

"There's an inability of people to recognize that vocational training is a need that exists, whether they like it or not," Howard said.

And Howard believes counselors themselves may have done as much as anyone else to perpetuate "the mythical concept" that everyone must attend college solely to earn an academic degree and enter a white collar job. He encourages students to balance their curriculum with both academic and vocational courses, so their survival capabilities in today's world are enhanced.

In his position as counselor, Howard is responsible for helping students adjust to college, especially those students who may be having special problems with college-level work because their basic skills may be weak.

"Some teachers believe a student is supposed to be ready to absorb college material at once, but many are not," Howard observed, with particular reference to so-called "Disadvantaged" students who may be weak in some academic areas, low-income, or otherwise disadvantaged.



TYRE HOWARD

Many of the students who most need that kind of counseling to adjust to college and to find their proper vocational niche won't avail themselves of his office because counseling has always had the negative connotation of truancy.

Nevertheless, there are many students, as Howard notes, who come to college with poor reading and writing skills who suffer through a regimen ill-suited to their own needs, or who drop out in despair.

"The reason we, as faculty and staff, don't see the student as a student is that most of our time is spent on our own lot," Howard said. "We get bogged down with programs, getting funds, and the like. If we as an educational system can communicate in areas the students are having problems in, then we can look at our real product--the student."

Howard feels there's an "artificial barrier" between the academic and vocational parts of the community which is a detriment to the student--particularly the minority student--trying to find his own proper slot in the world of employment. And that constitutes a real community problem that needs to be solved, he believes.

"If we are going to provide for the 'underachievers' through welfare, then let's give them a trade," he said. "But part of the problem is that counselors don't have enough time; what can you tell a student in 15 minutes?"

These cocerns have particular relevance to communities, such as Seaside, where minorities are trying to find training and employment in the various construction trades, Howard said. Often, openings for construction trade workers go unfilled by minority group members for the simple reason that they are not prepared. Vocational training is the key to meeting that need, he believes.

Howard remains more than willing to discuss educational objectives with students at MPC, but too often those most in need of counseling won't come in to talk. Thus, unhappily, the inequities in the system are perpetrated, but he has noticed a trend of more students toward blue collar jobs lately; possibly this is an indication that students are opting for the high-paying, relatively secure jobs instead of the ones requiring strictly academic preparation.

Faces around the bay: Cynthia Lee

Cynthia Lee is this week's subject of Martin Luther King Junior High's spotlight. She is the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee of 1955 Peralta St. She is a former student of Ord Terrace and San Carlos Schools.

Cynthia is a member of the King Scholars Chapter of the National Junior Honor Society. With a 4.00 average, Cynthia earned a spot on the honor roll. Her favorite subject is art. She has always enjoyed school and is particularly pleased with her experiences at King.

Cynthia's hobbies include bike riding and listening to records. She is a sport's enthusiast and has won awards in vollyball, kickball, soft ball and basketball. Cynthia also enjoys traveling and has visited at least twenty-one states. Her future plans include attending college and becoming a stewardess.

The royal rot pleases Monterey County vineyards

For the past three vintages, a significant number of Monterey County wine grapes turned moldy gray with rot in September, just before the harvest.

This particular rot was not cause for grief, but rather for great interest or happiness among Monterey County winemakers, because it is another manifestation of the unique qualities of Monterey County as a fine wine region.

For this gray mold which comes with regularity in Monterey County vineyards is not just an ordinary mold, but the mold of kings, as it were. It is called Botrytis cinerea. In France it is called "le pourriture noble," the famous noble rot; in Germany, "Edelfaule."

This exotic rot with many names is found with regularity in the Sauternes region of France's Bordeaux district, in the Rhine Valley in Germany, and in the Tokay region of Hungary. But it had not been found with regularity in the California wine districts until it developed in Monterey County.

Its presence can turn an ordinary grape harvest into wines with character and a delicate, natural sweetness. These characteristics, so sought after in the German Spatlese and Auslese wines and in the famous Sauternes of France, will be a marketing plus for the top local wines, said Gerald Asher, now introducing The Monterey Vineyard label.

For the Botrytis mold to give its beneficial effect, it cannot come too early. For the mold to enhance a wine, it should come after a long, slow growing season in which the grapes have matured fully. Then, about September, Botrytis (but only on certain varietals, traditionally Riesling, Semillion, Chenin Blanc) is welcome.

The Botrytis mold starts as a thin film, powdery white, which develops during periods of cool nights and is nourished on early morning fog or dew, prevalent in the cool temperature regions of Monterey County. The mold sends little hair-like capillaries down into the grape and some of the water from the grape is drawn out.

This evaporation concentrates the sugars and flavor elements of the grape much more than normal growing conditions. It can, in some cases, triple the concentration of natural grape sugars. Once in the grape, the Botrytis also reacts with the glycerins in the juice to create a different flavor and texture in the wine.

Wente Brothers, one of the earliest of the Monterey County growers, first capitalized on Botrytis in 1969, producing a Johannisberg Riesling Spatlese, a late-picking with some Botrytis. It was a great success with wine buffs. Wente also produced a Spatlese in 1972 and 1973 from its Monterey County Vineyards in Greenfield. In 1973 Wente also produced an Auslese (selection) somewhat sweeter and richer than the already rich Spatlese.

"We believe this quality is fine. Our White Riesling gets Botrytis with great regularity in our Arroyo Seco Vineyard in Greenfield," said Karl Wente. "Because of the excellent growing characteristics in Monterey, our Riesling grapes for the Auslese were harvested very late, the first week in November, with a sugar level of 30 balling."

Daniel Mirassou of Mirassou Vineyards also reports Botrytis.

"We're pleased to see it on the Johannisberg Riesling, Sylvaner and Gewurztraminer. There was a slight amount in the Pinot Chardonnay and Chenin Blanc, as well.

"Although the Chenin Blanc surprises many with a unique Botrytis characteristic, several of the famous vintages of the Loire Valley have been so affected. It becomes a valuable complexity in the wine after considerable bottle age. The Chardonnay with Botrytis makes an interesting wine, but we will control or eliminate the mold on this varietal in the future." Mirassou said.

However, even a noble mold such as Botrytis can be fickle, said Monterey County farm advisor Rudy Neja. If the rot comes too soon, early, or July Botrytis, can dry up the grapes and be destructive. Even when it's late, some wine varietals are not enhanced by Botrytis. Also Botrytised grapes require special handling and marketing, since yield per acre is always reduced.

Mirassou noted that there can be too much of a good thing, an ironic fact in California, since Botrytis is literally prayed for every year in the Rhine Valley.

The early rot has not appeared on Monterey County grapes and no Botrytis has been noticed before mid-September. And, although Botrytis cannot be induced easily, it can be controlled by careful sprinkling and selection of harvesting dates for the non-Botrytised wine types.

School attendance review board holds organization meeting

Monterey Peninsula Unified School District

The newly created Monterey Peninsula Unified School District Local School Attendance Review Board held its organizational meeting recently with chairman Leonard Cohn, Coordinator of Child Welfare and Attendance.

In accord with Senate Bill 1742, and under authorization of the Monterey County School Attendance Review Board, the new committee has been established to review referred cases of habitual truancy or behavior beyond control of school authorities. The board will attempt to solve school related problems as an alternative to referral to the Juvenile Court system.

The SARB contains the potential for major impact on the community resources, educational and juvenile justice social systems affecting the pre-delinquent and early delinquent child.

The newly created local board, patterned along the same guidelines as its county counterpart, will focus on attendance, not only truancies, but in the broader concern for any problem or combination of problems that adversely affect a child's school participation. Through its weekly meetings, the board provides an ongoing leadership and continuity of service through the several groups represented on the board rather than isolated, sporadic efforts to confront a particular crisis situation.

Another function of the board is to coordinate community resources for problem solving to prevent duplication of agencies' services, and also to promote the development of resources where none exist.

Any student under 18 years of age who persistently or habitually refuses to obey school authorities or who is an habitual truant, will first be referred to the Local School Attendance Review Board. The board will review the case, and make proposals for the use of alternatives for maximum use of community resources appropriate to assist in solving existing problems.

If the board determines that the available public and private services are insufficient or inappropriate to correct such minor's problems, or if the minor and the parents-guardian fail to respond to the proposals made, the minor will then be referred to the Juvenile Court. This referral will be made through a SARB request for petition by the county superintendent of schools on behalf of the pupil in Juvenile Court. In such cases, the board may also ask the school district to file specified criminal grounds against such parent, guardian or person in charge of the minor.

When the coordinator of child welfare and attendance makes such referrals, he must notify, by written communication, the minor and parents or guardians of the minor, of the name and address of the board to which the matter has been referred, and of the reason for such referral. The notice must indicate that the pupil and parents or guardians will be invited, with the referring person, to meet with the Local School Attendance Review Board to consider proper disposition of the referral. In order to refer a student to the probation department, it is necessary to first refer the matter to the Coordinator of Child Welfare and attendance who will arrange meetings for the Local School Attendance Review Board to process the case.

Members of the Local SARB are: Leonard L. Cohn, coordinator of MPUSD Child Welfare and Attendance-chairman; William Brazil, Monterey County Probation Department; Andrew Williams, Monterey County Welfare Department; Mrs. Wilma Campbell, and Mrs. Emma Lee Hennessey, Parents; William Vienna, Monterey County Office of Education.

Appointments of representatives to the board are for staggered two-year terms, initially decided by lot, and with the coordinator of child welfare and attendance to serve as continuing chairman. All board members are appointed by the Monterey Board of Education.

Representatives from the county probation department and county welfare department must be from the staff of those departments serving the geographic area of the Local SARB. The county office of education representative serves in an ex officio capacity.

Black graphic arts featured in exhibit

The Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center, Carmel, is presenting Black Graphics this month. Forty prints were selected by E. J. Montgomary, Ethnic Art Consultant for the Oakland Museum, from a major exhibit of artists Benny Andrews, Marion Epting, Leon N. Hicks, and Margo Humphrey, held in the Art Special Gallery of the Oakland Museum.

Black Graphics, now being circulated throughout the United States under the sponsorship of the Western Association of Art Museums, features Andrews' ink drawings and etchings, Epting's works in serigraph and intaglio, Hicks' intaglio, and Humphrey's color lithography.

The four artists are from diverse areas of the United States and are among a group of black artists emerging into the forefront of the graphics media. Each artist is deeply involved in and committed to the increasing community consciousness of black identity, heritage, and pride.

Benny Andrews was born in Madison, Ga. in 1930. His education includes Fort Valley State College, Fort Valley, Georgia; University of Chicago; Chicago Art Institute. He has had 30, one-man exhibitions and many group exhibitions including the San Francisco Museum of Art, Butler Institute of American Art, Chrysler Museum, Museum of African Art, Norfolk Museum, The Slater Memorial Museum, La Jolla Museum, Museum of Modern Art, High Museum of Art, Nathan Cummings Collection, Joseph Hirschorn collection, Richard Brown Baker Collection, and several university collections.

He was awarded the John Hay Whitney Fellowship in 1965 and 1966 and also received a Dorne professorship at Bridgeport University. He has taught in the Black Emergency Cultural Coalition's New York City prison art program, the New School for Social Research, New York City; California State University at Hayward; Queens College, New York City.

Marion Epting was born in Forest, Miss., in 1940 and educated at the Los Angeles City College and Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles where he completed his masters' degree in fine arts. He has exhibited at the Seattle Art Museum, Mesa College, Ball State University, California State University at San Jose, Denison University, Otis Art Institute, Manual Arts High School in Los Angeles, and the Dorothy Chandler Collection. He has received awards from the Lakeside Studio Special Editions. Most of his teachings has been at the California State University at Chico.

Leon Hicks was born in Deerfield, Fla. in 1933 and educated at Kansas State University and received his Master of Fine Arts degree from the State University of Iowa. In addition he has studied at Stanford, La Romita School of Art in Italy, and at the Atlantic University. He has had numerous one-man shows plus exhibiting at the Charleston Art Gallery, W. Va.; Tuskegee Institute; The Oakland Museum; Arkansas State University; and Lehigh University. His teaching experience includes Lehigh University, Lincoln University, Concord College, and Florida Agriculture and Mechanical College.

Margo Humphrey was born in Oakland in 1942 and educated at Merritt College, California State University at Hayward, California College of Arts and Crafts, and is presently in the MFA program at Stanford. She has had a one-man exhibit at the Casa de Eva Gallery and been exhibited at the Oakland Museum, Denison University, plus many of her works are maintained in private collections. She has taught at the Oakland Park and Recreation Centers and Stanford.

Black consciousness in a medium of high technical proficiency is the keynote of this exhibition. Universal symbols are used in a personal fashion to create a forthright statement having implications for black art in particular and American art in general.

The Marjorie Evans Gallery is open 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and one hour before a performance in the Sunset Center Theatre. The exhibit will be on view through April 15.

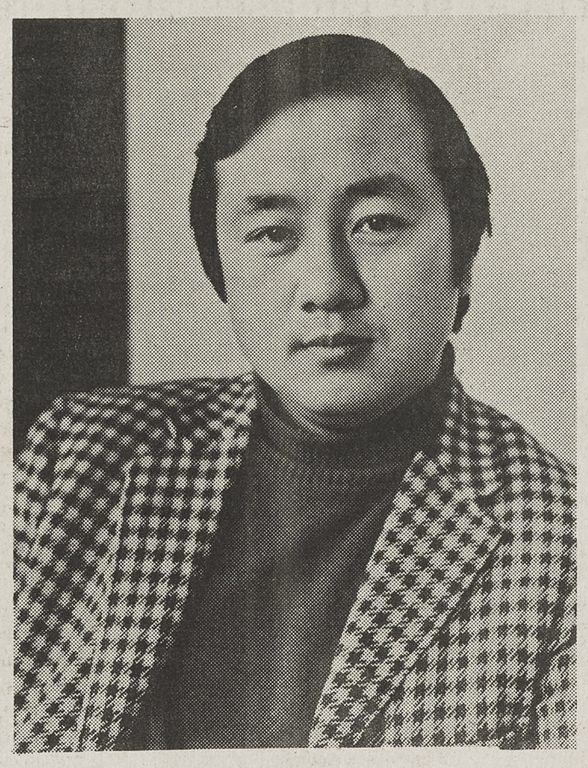
Air Force to have a part in symphony performances



TONG IL HAN, Korean born concert pianist, will be featured with Monterey County Symphony Orchestra conducted by Haymo Taeuber, Sunday, April 6 at Monterey Peninsula College Gym-Auditorium; Monday, April 7, at Sunset Auditorium, Carmel, and Tuesday, April 8 in Salinas. All performances are at 8 p.m.

When the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra plays the April 6, 7 and 8 set of concerts in Monterey, Carmel and Salinas, directed by Haymo Taeuber, the Air Force will have had a part in the performance.

The featured pianist, Tong Il Han, was born in Korea where he gave his first piano recital when he was six, and made his orchestral debut at 10. The commander of one of the Air Force bases heard him and immediately arranged a scholarship for him to study in the United States.

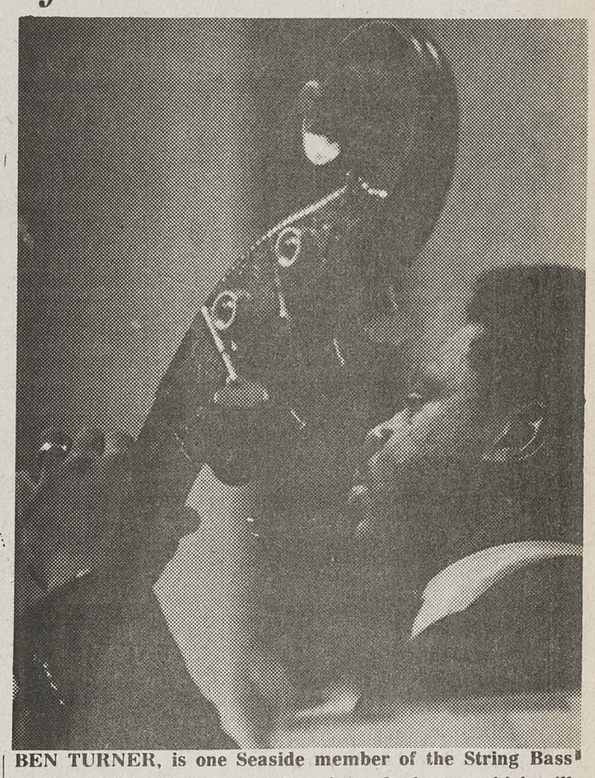
The contributions of thousands of airmen from the Fifth Air Force sponsored the 11-year-old prodigy, and he was immediately accepted at Juilliard School of Music to study under Madame Rosina Lhevinne and Ilona Kabos.

In 1965 Tong Il Han won the coveted Leventritt Award and since that time has appeared with the major American and European orchestras and has made several extensive recital tours of the Far East and Europe.

Tong Il Han will be performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 in D Minor with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra Sunday at Monterey Peninsula College Gym-Auditorium, Monday at Sunset Auditorium, Carmel; and Tuesday at Madonna del Sasso Church, Salinas. All performances start at 8 p.m.

The opening work of the concert is Glinka's Overture to Ruslan and Ludmilla, and the major orchestral work is Igor Stravinsky's Petrouchka, the ballet suite which has all the excitement of a Russian carnival with the nurses dance, the bear and peasant section, the merchant and two gypsies, the dance of the coachmen and the masquerader lively dance music. Petrouchka is a puppet in love with a puppet ballerina who in turn is loved by a Moor, and the carnival music brings into play all section s of the orchestra.

Ticket for the Monterey concert are available at the usual Symphony outlets. For more information call the Symphony office, 624-8511.



BEN TURNER, is one Seaside member of the String Bass Section of Monterey County Symphony Orchestra which will present the fifth concert of the season, Sunday, April 6, at Monterey Peninsula College Gym-Auditorium, repeating the concert Monday, April 7 at Sunset Auditorium, Carmel and Tuesday, April 8 at Madonna Del Sasso Church, Salinas. Haymo Taeuber Conducts the Orchestra which features Korean born Tong Il Han, concert pianist.

Registration for workshops

Registration is in progress for two psychology workshops, "Communication Within" and "Communication With Others" which are scheduled to begin during the month of April at Monterey Peninsula College.

"Communication Within" will be held Friday and Saturday, April 4 and 5 in H-203. Phillip Biddle, instructor, said the class will include a study of the methodology which facilitates the process of "individuation."

Biddle said individuation actually integrates and makes more useful the functions of thinking and intuiting, feeling and sensing. The process of individuation through communication will be the main subject of the course.

"Communication with Others" will be held Friday and Saturday, April 18-19 in H-203. Biddle said this course will facilitate an awareness of the difference between what is read and what is illusion, and when and how self deception occurs.

With application and practice, interpersonal communication methods will enhance each person's ability to overcome isolation, apartness and loneliness and will facilitate an ability to achieve closeness, openness and intimacy without consequences to the individuated self.

The workshops are not encounter or therapy groups. They are intensive training sessions in the methodology of self-expression.

For registration or further information, contact the MPC Registration Desk at 649-1150, ext. 217.

Social studies programs emphasize action as positive learning tool

The Social Studies programs in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District are placing more emphasis on action as a positive learning tool, as opposed to simple textbook instruction.

It's all part of the district effort to upgrade and better organize Social Studies programs throughout the district. As part of this effort, Ethnic Studies and Multi-Cultural Studies will become incorporated into the program.

In Seaside, students will hear black speakers in their classrooms, cook and eat "Soul Food," listen to jazz, and in other ways become aware of the contributions of Blacks to our culture in their Social Studies programs.

Later, other Ethnic groups in the community, including Filipino and Asian, will also be studied in the same first-hand, participatory manner. This aspect of Social Studies is expected to be implemented next year when the workbook now in preparation by Rosemary Poskus, with the assistance of two Ord Terrace teachers, is completed.

Helping in the preparation of the workbook, which draws on the materials in the Instructional Materials Center as well as on the experience and expertise of staff, are Sharon Gross, a coordinator of Elementary and Secondary Education Act programs at Ord Terrace School, and Kathy Hawley, a teacher there who assists with the production of film strips.

Rosemary Poskus, who's had more than 20 years of experience in the Monterey Schools, is employed as a Curriculum Associate in the District Planning Department and is organizing and writing the new social studies booklet for teachers.

"We will stress concepts, and we hope to strengthen social studies throughout the district," she said. "We're trying to make them action programs, rather than just reading programs."

Drawing upon the varied resources of the Instructional Materials Center, with its books, tapes, televisions, and resource centers, students will participate in group activities, art projects, media activities, dramatics, community exploration, and holiday observations as part of their social studies.

"We will start with the kindergarten teachers and go through the district finding out what's appropriate at each grade level," Ms. Poskus said.

Integrated throughout the social studies programs will be studies of different ethnic groups in the community where students live, in line with the concept of making the community an extension of the classroom.

Some aspects of the new social studies programs not traditionally associated with the lower grades will be values clarification, problem solving, decision-making, and inquiry. Specific learning goals and objectives are also being built into the new social studies program to meet requirements for teacher accountability as required by the Stull Bill, enacted into state law several years ago.

Emphasis will also be placed on such traditional areas of social studies as globe and map skills, but those areas will be integrated into the whole program stressing the student's actual environment.

Special committee submits reports to school district

Following several months of meetings, the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District Small Schools Study Committee, under chairmanship of Jay Hudson, voted to end its deliberations and to submit all reports and recommendations to the board of trustees.

On Feb. 19, after a preliminary report to the board, and after receiving suggestions from all district schools, three area committees were formed to study each section of the community which could be involved.

Areas included Monterey, under chairman Ray Stevenson; Seaside under Tom Bridges; and Monterey-Seaside with Tom Coyne as chairman. Each elementary school designated a teacher, a parent, and an administrator to attend the meetings. Junior high schools sent one certificated staff member.

Charge to the area committees was to look for ways to:

Improve quality of instruction in areas of declining enrollment;

Continue quality of instruction;

Examine all possibilities in alleviating the high cost of education in small schools.

Since representatives of the small schools had met in several earlier meetings, new members were briefed on progress in special sessions. Following several area meetings, the recommendations were presented to the whole committee in its meeting March 20 at the school district offices. Committee suggestions ranged from leaving schools as they are to closing one or more entirely.

Others were to realign boundaries, or to allow open enrollment to equalize enrollment. Some persons advocated busing, others were avidly opposed. Alternate and additional use of facilities suggested were fundamental or other special schools, adult classes, or other programs supported through categorical aid.

Committee members, after about one hour of discussion, agreed that after the length of the study and the number of areas considered, further discussion would not add to the report to the board. Therefore, they voted unanimously to submit all committee reports for board consideration as an information item during the regular meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, April 7, to be held at the Instructional Materials Center on Canyon Del Rey.

Board members will determine at that meeting if a need for a study session exists, and when action will be taken. The public is encouraged to attend.

Copies of the committee reports are available to the public in the office of the elementary schools included in the study.

THE DISTINCTIVE four-man color guard of the U.S. Army Combat Developments Experimentation Command (CDEC) is scheduled to appear during the Philippine Scouts Association of America observation of the 33rd anniversary of the fall of Bataan and Corregidor. CDEC, headquartered at Ft. Ord on the Monterey Peninsula, conducts field experiments at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation to answer the questions, "How can the Army of the future be organized, be equipped, and best fight?"

Health department lauded

The practice in Monterey County of issuing citations to arrested prostitutes requiring an immediate venereal disease medical examination within 72 hours was commended by a state health department official, announced Dr. R. J. Bowersox, direction of public health.

Unlike many other counties, the local health department was singled out as having a model alternative to the custom and state regulation that requires jain and denies bail until V.D. tests are complete for arrested prostitutes.

The legality of this regulation has been challenged in San Francisco court and quarantine has been prohibited. Robert L. Gnaizda, acting director of the State Health Department, deplores counties using expensive quarantine procedures that are only achieving law enforcement objectives by circumventing constitutional protection. Available data indicates that prostitutes are among the high risk groups contributing to the V.D. epidemic but this does not justify denial of due process when bail is readily available even for major crimes of violence.

The progressive program in V.D. control in Monterey County reflects a philosophy that in a democratic society venereal disease cannot be eradicated by harsh and punitive measures, but only through education and community cooperation.

Scouts plan annual Scout-O-Rama

Bud Platter, the 1975 chairman for the Scout-O-Rama in the Peninsula District, Monterey Bay Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, announces that the 70 Packs, Troops and Explorer Units in the district will send their representative ticket sales chairmen to a kick-off meeting April 3.

The meeting will be held at 7:00 p.m. Thursday at the Monterey Elks Club at 150 Mar Vista Drive in Monterey.

Ticket Sales kits will be distributed at this meeting for distribution to the 1,800 members of the various Scouting units and ticket sales will begin immediately and will continue until the Scout-O-Rama day on May 10 at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Members of the Scouting units selling tickets will earn prizes; Packs, Troops, and Explorer Units will earn commissions to help with defraying the costs of their various program activities.

The Scout-O-Rama, an annual activity of the Monterey Bay Area Council, is a showcase of the various skills and activities of the Cub Packs, Scout Troops and Explorer Units in the Peninsula District.

Platter invites the public to join in the fun by attending this great activity and actually taking an active part in many of the program features There is something for everyone at the Scout-O-Rama.

Postgraduate school holds graduation

The Naval Postgraduate School (NPS) held its March graduation ceremony last week in King Hall on campus. Rear Adm. Isham Linder, NPS superintendent, presented 218 degrees to graduating students, including one doctoral degree and three engineer degrees.

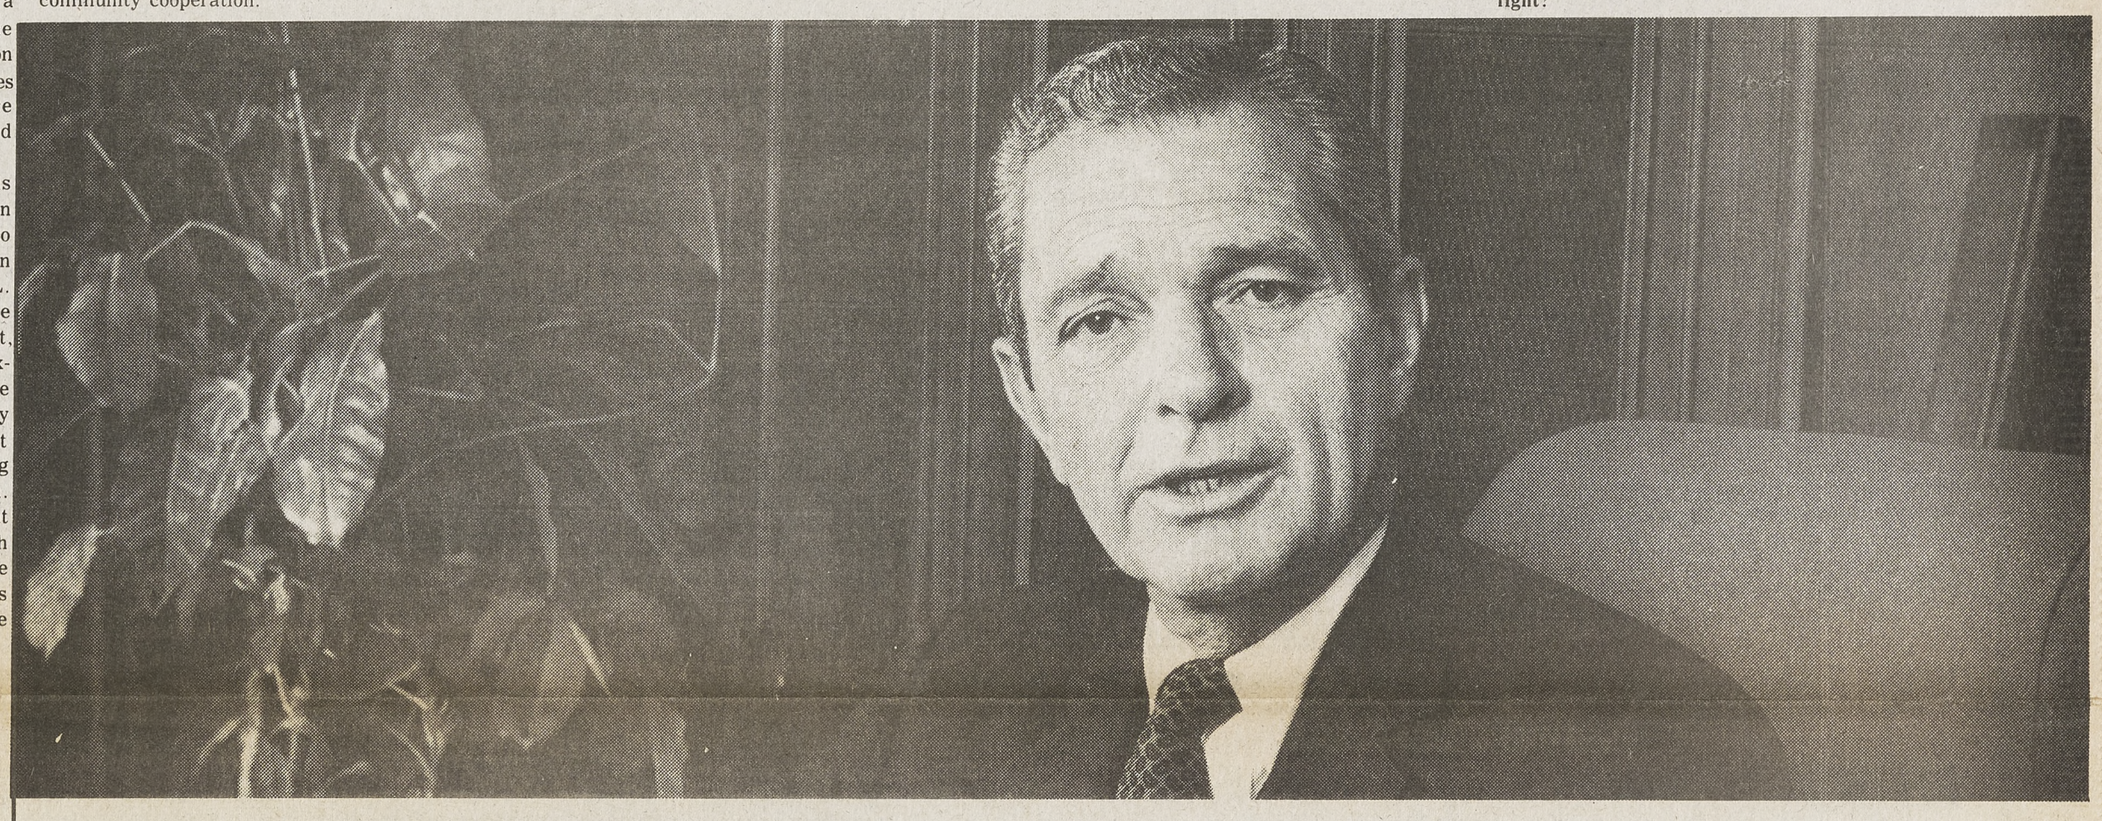
Receiving a Ph.D. degree in aeronautics was Navy Lieutenant Paul B. Schlein. Electrical engineer degrees were awarded to Navy Lts. Thomas A. Reglein and Milton L. Senft, and Lt. Mutsuhiro Matsuda of the Japanese Military Self Defense Force.

Among the graduates were six Army officers, three Marine Corps officers, and one Coast Guard officer. Twenty-two degrees were earned by officers of 12 allied nations.

Several graduates received special recognition, all of whom are naval officers. Lt. Michael W. Cramer received the Navy League of Monterey Award for Academic Achievement, as well as the Director of Naval Intelligence Award. Lt. Thomas A. Reglein received the Chief of Naval Operations Communications Award, and Lt Rodney L Benson the Chief of Naval Operations Communications Certificate.

The Chief of Naval Operations Anti-Submarine Warfare Award went to Lt. Edward E. Ham Jr., and the Chief of Naval Operations Award for Excellence in Operations Research was awarded to Lt. Cmdr. William C. Mackey, III.

Guest speaker for the exercises was G. D. Penisten, assistant secretary of the Navy for financial management. Also attending were Vice Adm. Joseph J. McClelland, commandant of the 12th Coast Guard District; Brig. Gen. Edward M. Markham, III, deputy commanding general, Army Training Center and Fort Ord; and Col Broman C. Steinmetz, director of the 12th Marine Corps District.



Let's hear from you. Crocker's changing banking.

For a long time, the business of banking has been run one way–the bank's way.

But now, we're changing all that. I'm Tom Wilcox, Chairman of the Board of Crocker Bank.

Most people feel that most banks are just too big and too busy to care. And in all too many cases a bank's performances prove that the customer once again is right.

The old joke about "Bankers' Hours" loses its charm after you've run three blocks to find the door already locked.

And a crowded line at a teller's window is a lousy place to spend your lunch hour. Particularly when there are other windows open–but no tellers.

So, Crocker's changing banking. Listening to you and responding–as quickly as possible.

Starting with the problems that we already know bother you. Things like long lines and short hours.

In the weeks and months to come, we'll be changing schedules and procedures whenever and wherever possible. Remolding and revitalizing our ways to fit yours.

We think it's a good idea, a bank that's willing to listen to you for a change.

So, let us hear from you. Just write, Thomas R. Wilcox, Chairman of the Board of Crocker Bank, P.O. Box 38029, San Francisco 94138.

And then come into Crocker and try banking your way for a change.

Crocker's changing banking.

Free movies shown at Sunset Center

Free movies are offered at Sunset Center at 2 p.m. on the third Thursday of each month. Most programs include a full length documentary and a short subject which might be a comedy or a special interest film.

The afternoon series is sponsored jointly by Sunset Center and the Monterey Peninsula College Department of Community Services and is especially planned to accommodate the many people who have indicated that they prefer daytime to nighttime activities.

The current series of films becan in September and will continue through June with all programs being scheduled for 2 p.m. on the third Thursday of the month. Still to be shown before the summer recess are:

Thursday, April 17: "Julius Caesar" -- the first feature length sound film made of a Shakespeare play and the first film in which Charlton Heston appeared. The second film, "Dog Snatcher," features the familiar Mr. Magee mixing with City Hall authorities and a traveling circus with unpredictable results.

Thursday, May 15: "Ukranian Concert Hall"--stars of Russia's Ukrain dance in selections from opera, ballet, folk music, and folk dance. Also on the same program is "The Tell Tale Heart," the famous Edgar Allan Poe tale with remarkable impressionist art work and the chilling narration of James Mason.

Thursday, June 19: "When Comedy was King" is a compilation of some of the greatest moments of comedy ever filmed. See again Buster Keaton, Laurel and Hardy, Wallace Beery, Gloria Swanson, and many more. With this will be shown "A Unicorn in the Garden" adapted from James Thurber's ironic fable about the wife who tries to have her meek husband certified because he saw a unicorn in the garden.

Original musical by peninsula resident to be presented this week

"Dear Earthlings," an original musical 'space fantasy' penned by Carmel resident Joan Hopkins, will be presented at Monterey Peninsula College on Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6, with Saturday performance at 2 p.m. and Sunday performance at 3 p.m. in the MPC Theatre.

Mrs. Hopkins said "Dear Earthlings" is based on the story of Sleeping Beauty and is for children of all ages. The play includes more than 20 songs composed by Mrs. Hopkins and features a blend of ragtime, blues, waltzes, tangos and rock.

The story centers around the planet "Love," where forgiveness puts an end to wickedness. The entire audience is "transported" to the distant planet by the singing of a magic song, and at the end of the performance, are returned. A Chorus of Trees provides the communication between the narrators from outer space and the actors.

The large cast for "Dear Earthlings" includes a wide variety of singers, dancers, and actors from many of the local schools, MPC and from the community. Mrs. Hopkins recruited the cast from students she had worked with as a substitute teacher in Monterey Schools and through acquaintances.

The production of "Dear Earthlings" has not been a one-lady operation. Mrs. Hopkins said her entire family has become involved. "My husband, Peter, has become the veritable house-husband while I have been involved with rehearsals at MPC," she says. He and son Chris, have done much of the work on publicity materials and daughter Pam, with the help of Mrs. Louise Brace and Mrs. Evelyn Bindel, has produced the actors' costumes.

Mrs. Hopkins, who is also directing the performance, originally wrote the play as a children's record. A demonstration LP was 'cut' but marriage and a family caused Mrs. Hopkins to discontinue the project.

She "resurrected" the play two years ago and became involved with Morgan Stock's Experimental Theatre class at MPC. Through classroom encouragement, the play was rewritten into verse including more than 500 rhymes. The play has undergone 10 major rewritings over the years, Mrs. Hopkins said.

Mrs. Hopkins started writing lyrics at the age of five. She is the daughter of Ida Bostelmann-Cobb, who wrote two Broadway operettas and more than 350 piano pieces for children, and Scribner Cobb, poet and student of Robert Frost, who described him in 1929 as "the most promising young American poet." He later turned his talents to music.

The MPC Players in the cast include Linda Sparks as Cleo, Curtis Bridgeforth as Theo, Debbie Rye as the Queen, Paul Wood as the King, Bruce Babcock as the Court Jester, Sherrie Coleman as Hilogic, Carole Moreland as Princess Beauty and Michael C. King as the Astronaut Prince.

Ms. Gertruce Snyder, an instructor at Fort Ord's Stilwell School, will play Zorina the Wicket Witch and Lola Bindel, a student at Fremont Jr. High School, will play the two parts of the Good Fairy Sisters.

The cast of Villagers and The Chorus of Trees include Leslie Johnson from Carmel High School; Vgs Zorina the Wicket Witch and Lola Bindel, a student at Fremont Jr. High School, will play the two parts of the Good Fairy Sisters.

The cast of Villagers and The Chorus of Trees include Leslie Johnson from Carmel High School; Mrs. Bobbie Whipple, a Carmel Valley housewife; Aleasha Anderson, Robby Forby, George Peterson, Leslie Green, and Alex Pitts, all from Fremont Jr. High School; Richard and Louise Brace, of Carmel; Stan Kasguba, of New Monterey; Mrs. Sharon Wagner, a Monterey housewife, Julie Wellborn and George Reed, of MPC; Teresa Kitcher, of Los Arboles; Wendy Buccelli, of Bayview School; Desiree Coleman, of Forest Grove School; Richard Coleman, of Miss Ashcroft's School; Tanya Kasguba, of Hilltop School; Alicia and Sarah Welch, of Tularcitos Elementary School; and Chris, Michael, and Trey Whipple, from the Carmelo School.

The three Court Musicians are played by George Free, Ace Martin Acevedo, and Kenneth Kitcher, all from Los Arboles, Jr. High School.

Working with Mrs. Hopkins backstage are Gina Welch, assistant director who is a Carmel Valley music and drama teacher; student directors, Linda Sparks and Rainblow Flash; Mrs. Laura Dickson, choreographer, of Carmel Valley; Bob Buccelli, pianist; Tom Forham and Cliff Lemon, musical arrangements; and store manager Church Bramlett, MPC students.

Admission to each performance is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Grant receives design award

Peninsula architect Michael Allen Grant has received the 1974 "Metal Building of the Year" award for his design of the Raiser Architectural Group office building in San Mateo.

This award is presented annually by the Metal Building Dealers Association.

The newly-completed building is a two-story space grid sheathed with golden-bronze reflective glass. Another interesting feature is its open, interior courtyard.

Grant's other designs include the addition to the Pacific Grove Fire Station, which will house the new hyperbaric chamber used to treat scuba divers suffering from the "bends" and other deep-sea afflictions. He is also the general contractor for construction of the Homestead Savings and Loan executive offices in Mountain View.

Grant's architectural background is wide and includes study with the late internationally-acclaimed master, Frank Lloyd Wright.

Presently a member of the Heritage Society of Pacific Grove, Grant has also served on that city's architectural review board. A native Southern California, he now resides and practices in Pacific Grove.

Repair on barracks starts

Repair has begun on 181 wooden barracks at Fort Ord to get them suitable for housing soldiers of the 7th Infantry Division.

The repair contract, for $804,107, was awarded to Daniels and House of Monterey and refurbishing of the old barracks will be completed by the end of June.

Four sub-contractors are now working on the project--Leneve Painting Company of Carmel, Redwood Heating and Sheetmetal, also of Carmel, Art's Flooring Company of Watsonville, and Searle Electric Company of Monterey. Charles L. Hopkins, chief of Fort Ord's Procurement Division, said that more sub-contractors would be added as the work progresses.

When completed the renewed barracks will provide living quarters for more than 6,000 soldiers.

The Eskimo and the Tlingit Indians believe that the aurora borealis is the spirits of the dead at play.

SAFETY SCENE

Automobile Spoken Here

Lack of communication between drivers can be the cause of many accidents. Here's an introductory course in the automotive "language" of headlight flicks, horn sounds, hand signals, and even facial expression, that will add greater safety to you and your family's driving.

For example, suppose you have to stop suddenly and wish to warn the drivers behind you. Pump your brake pedal in a series of fast hard stabs to flash on your brake lights. Then, add a hand signal by waving your left arm in a wide vertical arc outside your window. Should you see such a signal from the car in front of you, relay it to the car behind you.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

QUESTIONS ABOUT THE ENERGY ISSUE WERE SOLICITED FROM PEOPLE-ON-THE-STREET IN SIX MAJOR CITIES BY GULF OIL CORPORATION. HERE IS ONE OF THE QUESTIONS:

▶ WHY IS THE PRICE OF GASOLINE SO HIGH?

▶ ANSWER: It is directly attributable to the worldwide increase in the price of crude oil. Our prices are controlled and the Federal Government has regulated each of the price increases passed through to the consumer. Until we can bring supply and demand into balance and develop energy self-sufficiency, we are going to be dependent on high cost foreign crude oil and the prices at the pump will continue to be high.

Psychology and geology combined in summer trip on Colorado River

MPC is offering a unique summer experience that will combine psychology and geology with a raft trip down the Colorado River.

Officially, the classes are Geology 195, "Geology of the Colorado Plateau," and Psychology 195 "Interpersonal Growth and Growth Processes", but in reality the emphasis is on self-fulfillment.

The river excursion has been offered for several years as a geology course. This summer, for the first time, the element of psychology is being introduced.

This new ripple in the river trip came about when psychology instructor John Blakemore accompanied geologist John Kingsley on the raft last summer.

"We began to talk about how people work together in a 12-day period when they're pretty much in a confined group," Blakemore recalled. "We saw some molding going on, and some behavior patterns, and we thought it would be interesting to have people become aware of these things."

Certain patterns tend to emerge naturally when people are thrown together in an extended group experience.

Blakemore plans to make participants aware of these things, thus leading to a greater understanding of themselves as individuals.

"It is not an encounter," he explained.

Students will not be forced into molds, but rather allowed to work within the environment. Blakemore will simply "make them aware of what happens when 30 people spend two weeks on a bus and raft in a recreational type atmosphere."

The "class," he explained, will be a loosely-structured, on-going type of thing with no formal group processes. Rather, it will be based on "spontaneous interaction that takes place and leads to discussion." The discussion will largely take place during the evenings "among all or part of the group," he said.

Although limited to 30 persons, the trip is open to anyone, from regular students to non-student community residents. The instructors said participants need not be hardened, outdoor types, trained in living in the wilderness. Nor do they need backgrounds in psychology or geology.

"All you have to do is be able to sleep in a sleeping bag," Blakemore said.

The trip costs $250, and that includes bus transportation, food, lodging and the raft trip itself. Two rafts, each holding 15 persons, will be used. The rafts are operated by professional boatmen with trained helpers, and food is provided and cooked by the river crew. Students must provide their own sleeping bags and clothing that should include a heavy jacket.

The class will camp at various spots along the route. Blakemore described the camping areas as "spectacular."

Along the way, Kingsley will point out many phenomena of geology that cannot be observed in other locals. The Colorado Plateau is a raised platform sliced by deep river canyons and erosional plateaus that expose "the panorama of geologic time, history and structure. In no other place in the world is earth history better exposed for direct observation," Kingsley said.

The trip will be preceeded by three-hour lectures on the evenings of May 22, 29 and June 12. Students will travel by bus to Tecopa Hot Springs in Death Valley on June 14. After spending the night there they will journey through Zion Park, Bryce Park and Green River, Utah, spending nights in each place.

They will begin the river trip June 18 and be on the river until June 22 when they arrive at Hite, Utah. Then they will travel to Kayenta, the Grand Canyon-North Rim and Afton Canyon before returning to Monterey on June 26. There will be a post-trip lecture on July 19.

Deadline for registration is May 9, and a $50 deposit will be required. The deposit is non-refundable after the class begins.

More information on the river trip can be obtained by calling 649-1150, ext. 292.

Physicians to convene

Two out-of-state physicians and one from California will be featured speakers at the California Heart Association's 1975 Scientific Sessions for Physicians at the organization's May annual meeting in Monterey.

The presentations will be held on Friday morning, May 16, at the Del Monte Hyatt House. The program will begin at 8:45 a.m. and adjourn at 5:30 p.m.

"To Pace or Not to Pace," will be discussed by Dr. Philip Samet, chief of the Division of Cardiology, Mount Sinai Medical Center, Miami Beach.

Jan Koch-Weser, M.D., associate professor pf pharmacology, Harvard Medical School, will talk on "Is There a Rational and Practical Approach to Anti-Arrhythmia Therapy?"

John Ross, Jr., Md., head of the Cardiology division, University of California Hospital, San Diego, will present "What You Need to Know about Hypertension."

A panel of physicians will respond to each of the presentations, emphasizing areas of agreement and disagreement and presenting special clinical situations for further discussion.

Concurrent workshops in the afternoon will cover: Pacemakers, Hemodynamic Monitoring Techniques, Cardiac Drugs, Patient Selection for Coronary Angiography and Applications of Non-Invasive Techniques.

Registration fee for physicians is $25, but will not be charged to medical students, house officers, research fellows, interns or those in the military service.

Advance registration forms are available from the California Heart Association, 1370 Mission Street, San Francisco.

The sessions are co-sponsored by the American Heart Association Council on Clinical Cardiology, the Nevada Heart Association and the Central Mission Trails Heart Association.
